Editorial

Role Needs Evaluation

Cries of dissatisfaction with various areas of Wartburg College are a frequent and oftentimes healthy sound on the campus.

These cries are often complaints that Wartburg simply can't compare to state universities and that it should make more effort to offer a program more similar to state schools.

This competition, it is argued, would draw more students who might otherwise enroll in state institutions, in addition to keeping more students here for four years.

Answer Given

An answer to this criticism was given this week in Minneapolis, Minn., by Dr. Manning M. Pattillo, who directed a study for the Danforth Foundation of the nation's 817 church-affiliated colleges and universities.

Dr. Patillo emphasized the fact that church colleges should resist the temptation to imitate public institutions and instead develop a distinctive program of their own. He stressed the need of private colleges to take a more experimental approach to their work.

Dr. Allen O. Pfinister, who spoke in convocation last year, seemed to agree with this viewpoint in the speech he gave at that time. He said that the private liberal arts institution, in order to survive, must have something to offer that cannot be found in a state supported school.

What Is Distinctive?

Does Wartburg offer something distinctive? It's a hard question for most of us to answer. Certainly there is the emphasis on Christian education that is not found in public institutions. But what else do we have? There is more to education than a cordial Christian atmosphere.

The college is experimenting with, revising and developing new curriculum programs. In some areas outstanding improvements have been made. Other areas need much work. But many faculty members, administrators and students are working to give Wartburg that "extra something."

Perhaps it's time some of us stopped trying to compare an educational institution serving nearly 1200 people with one that serves thousands.

Realizing that we cannot compete, it would seem like a better idea to stop griping and encourage the development of distinctive programs of our own.

Wartburg students are becoming quite adapted to the finer arts--the choir is going to Europe; some students are entering the art contest; the baseball boys are "swingin' in the rain."

The only students who are relaxed at Wartburg are the ones who are so smart they don't need to study or are so dumb they don't realize it.

If the weather continues to stay as wet as it is, the convocation stage will be the only place where our baseball players will get to play.

Muff's Muffs

Threat Ends Week Of Woes

By DICK McCABE

Quite the week here at Wartburg. If one more thing goes wrong I'm going to turn in all my Cap'n Crunch box tops, collect my whirlo-riffic beanie and head for Wisconsin, where I've been promised climatic sanction.

I was glad the flood didn't get over Bremer Avenue or we probably would never have found out about the record pig birth here in Iowa.

It's what historians will refer to as an agricultural renaissance. One more headliner like that and Iowa's liable to be able to retract the presidential proclamation of eternal disaster area.

Things started out fast Tuesday when I was told that after the tide went out the Queen Mary was floundering between the bridge and the dam.

I was so excited I ran over to the cafeteria and almost started eating breakfast before I realized what I was doing. I finally did make it down to the bridge with the help of two grade school kids who claimed to be patrol boys.

I got to look over the side for a while, and lo and behold this billow (that's an epileptic wave) jumped up, and before I could ward off its impact I'd lost both my pail and shovel. It's really amazing how consoling patrol boys can be.

On Wednesday I was told by the administrative curia here at school that I wasn't to try hanging any more of the Wartburg coaches in effigy until I found out what effigy meant.

And if I don't quit waking up Dave Hutson every morning yelling "Outfly," they're not going to let the housemother give back my greenie-stickem caps at the end of the semester like she promised.

On Thursday somebody stole my clothes from the washing machine in the dorm. If you see some guy walking around with Goodwill labels on his T-shirts, jump him.

That same night the housemom crashed the victory party we were having for my roommate to celebrate his finally reaching maturity.

Friday morning I found the saddle shoes I'd given to the Salvation Army back in my mailbox. Apparently some 10 - year - old girl in Viet Nam thought they were too sissy.

That noon I headed over to see Coach Bondhus about starting on the football team next year. He reached down and patted me on my medulla, shoved this all - day sucker in my hand and told me to come around when I outgrew my Buster Browns and lost my sense of humor.

As I left the gym, I ran into Mr. Kurtt, who helped me up and introduced himself as the freshman basketball coach. After I introduced myself as having been on his freshman basketball team, he winced and went in to have a good laugh with Mr. Bondhus.

Back at the dorm in the afternoon I was informed my draft cards had come back, and I was classified unsanitary.

And the Carnation Company wanted me to pose for the former on some before - and - after pictures they were taking for an advertising campaign they'd finished.

I decided Friday night that I'd run for Senate, but rejected the idea when I found out the Bookstore was out of poster paper.

My roommate was over bothering some girl at Centennial Hall so I took a quorum vote and elected me as room president. When the bell tolled midnight, a junta was personally instigated and carried out by my predecessor.

He reaffirmed his previous monarchical status, and felt that an impromptu shower would serve more as a punishment to me than the normal hand - spanking ritual we go through each time I try to dethrone him from the office of lower bunk.

Well, 'tis Saturday, and I suppose if the sun's shining this afternoon I'll get out on the football field and let the ultra - red rays get at my rickets, and if it's raining I'll be wondering where the baseball team isn't playing. Ten-four.

Knights To Play Two At Fayette After Winning Initial Game, 3-2

By BILL GLITZ

Coach Earnest Oppermann and his troopers packed up the show and headed for Fayette this morning, as the Knights take on Upper Iowa in a twinbill today.

Today's games will be the first official conference games for Wartburg, which has had six conference games postponed by the weather.

Wartburg goes into this game with a 1-1 record, after defeating Dubuque last Wednesday, 3-2.

Oppie Surprised

Oppie received a pleasant surprise in the Dubuque contest--pretty good pitching. Lynn Butterbrodt made his first start for the Knights and hurled an impressive three innings.

After he was touched for a run on two hits in the first inning, Butterbrodt hurled an almost flawless two frames to finish up his stint for the day.

John Hearn then came on to pitch from his left field position in the fourth and he held the Spartans scoreless for his three innings.

Bunting Pitches

With the Knights leading 3-1 in the top of the seventh, Bob Bunting came on to pitch for the Knights. After three batters, two of which reached base, Oppermann saw enough of Bunting and brought on Dave Walters, who worked his way out of the scrape.

Walters got himself into trouble in the eighth but pitched his way out of this trouble too.

Denny Bowman struggled through a shaky ninth, giving up the other Spartan run, and the Knights went home winners for the first time this year.

Oppermann expressed pleasure with his mound crew in the Dubuque game. He cited Lynn Butterbrodt, John Hearn and Dave Walters for exceptionally fine performances.

Hitting Good

Oppermann also said that the hitting was good considering that the Knights were facing two of the better pitchers in the Iowa Conference.

Once again the Knight defense was almost flawless, being charged with only one error. That came in the ninth inning on a tough chance for thirdbaseman Lowell Grunwald.

Oppermann's summation of his team after two ballgames: "We're a good ballclub, and if we get some good pitching we'll be a very tough ballclub for any team."

Coach Investigates Book

Oppermann has also been digging in the Iowa Conference rule book this past week. He said that Wartburg is not out of the Iowa Conference race as previously thought.

In January of 1963 a rule was passed for baseball which stated that a team must play half of the conference games to win the title.

However, a new rule was passed in May of the same year which said that the team with the best winning percentage would win the conference, no matter how many games it played.

Rule Is Ridiculous

Terming this rule as ridiculous, the coach pointed out that if Wartburg went 1-0 this year they would win the title on percentage even though another team could go 13-1.

Oppermann's pitching plans were uncertain for today. He said that it would all depend on how the wind blows. If it is blowing in the right direction to aid Doyle Burn's curve ball, he may get the nod.

John Mantey sails across home base to contribute another point to Wartburg's victory over the University of Dubuque Wednesday.

Linksters To Face Luther For 2nd Time This Season

Led by Athlete of the Month Les Holland, the golfers take on a busy schedule in the coming week. Today, the Knights attempt to take the second verdict of the year from the Luther Norskies at Decorah.

Tuesday, the Knights play in a quadrangular meet at Waterloo with State College of Iowa, Illinois State College and Loras.

Wednesday, Iowa Wesleyan comes to Waverly to challenge the golfers in what should prove to be an interesting match since Wesleyan won the conference last year.

Friday and Saturday, the Knights take on Augustana and Buena Vista at Waverly and Storm Lake respectively. This week will determine what kind of results may be expected from the squad.

Last Saturday at Dubuque, the Knights split their matches, defeating Luther, 8-7, for the first time in five years, and losing to Loras 11 1/2-3 1/2.

Hebron Wins 2nd Round Of Tournament

Hebron defeated Wartburg in a last minute rally Wednesday night in the second round of the Women's Recreation Association softball tournament.

With a score of 4-1, Hebron took its last turn at bat to try to overcome Wartburg's lead. A sudden hitting streak gave Hebron the victory with the final score of 5-4.

Centennial was unable to muster enough players to face Vollmer.

Leading the tournament is Hebron with two wins. Vollmer and Wartburg follow with one win each. Centennial holds down the cellar with two losses.

Wartburg's WRA will host the annual Spring Sports Day May 8. Other schools who will participate are Buena Vista, Upper Iowa, State College of Iowa and Luther.

Track and field events will be held in the morning and softball and tennis in the afternoon.

Zosulis Volleyballers Go Undefeated; Champions Reign In I-M Wrestling

Aivars Zosulis completed an undefeated season to capture the co-ed volleyball crown. Zosulis dominated the competition from the start with a well balanced team.

Champions have been also determined in the intramural wrestling tournament. The only weight that has not completed its final bracket is the 167 class. This match should be completed in the coming week.

First three divisions were uncontested. Dennis Dirks, Bill Moews and Scott Lingren took the 123, 130 and the 137 weights respectively.

At 147 a three-way contention developed for the title. In the first round Rich Bringewatt defeated Dick McCabe. In the final match Bringewatt went on to pin Doug Hart.

5 In 157 Class

Five wrestlers competed in the 157-lb. class. Tom Mark dropped the first confrontation to Chris Schmidt in the first round, while Dennis Le Clere took a victory from Don Hamann to complete the bracket.

In the lower grouping Dale Stadtmueller forfeited to eliminate a three-way play-off. Dennis Le Clere went on to take the championship by a decision.

Crown Awaits Match

167-lb. crown awaits the match between Rex Dalzell, first round winner from Eldon Hoerschelman, and Galen Fick.

In the first competition at 177, Gerald Baldner pinned Steve Schaeffer. Harry Gardner took the latter conflict from Dennis Baker. In the final round Gardner won a decision over Baldner.

Bruce Koster won over Al Bogenschutz by a pin in the 197-lb. class.

Noel Rewarts captured the laurels in the heavyweight division with a pin from Aivars Zosulis.

Intramural softball begins today. Schedules have been drawn up by chairman Gerald Baldner for the upcoming season. Should two teams tie for first place, a play-off series will be held.

Norse Down Wartburg As Enemy Takes 3 Events

Luther College, at Wartburg for Thursday's dual track meet, swept three events and set four new records in their 85-46 romp over the Knights. Closest Wartburg came to a record was in tieing the high jump mark.

Laird Yock tied Carl Anderson's high jump record at 6'2". Anderson set the old number for the Knights in 1957.

Luther's new marks came mostly in distances. Jerry Thompson chopped .8 of a second off his 1963 record when he won the 400-yard dash in 49.4.

New Mark In Low Hurdles

Bob Fjelstul slid in under the wire in the 220-yard low hurdles with a time of 24.8. This was .2 of a second faster than the mark set by Luther's Dave Wangsness in 1960.

Norse's Gene Takle lapped two Wartburg runners in his record-breaking two mile run. His time this year was clocked at 9:24.5, compared to his record last year of 9:44.7.

It took 15 years to do it, but Luther's 1950 mile relay record was finally broken. Winning time was 3:26.0. Again, it was the Norse who topped the old mark of 3:26.4. Runners were Paul Olsen, Jim Svanoe, Mike Austad and Jerry Thompson.

Wartburg Wins Other Firsts

Besides Yock, other firsts for Wartburg included Harold Shudlick, who ran the 120-yard high hurdles in 15.2, and Jack Fistler, 10.3, in the 100-yard dash.

Lowell Syverson won with 20'10 3/4" in the broad jump and Lynn Altemeier was first in the javelin with a toss of 165'8".

Jim Fliehler and Kurt Weiland of Wartburg and Dale Main of Luther finished in a three-way first place tie in the pole vault at a height of 12'6".

3 Finish Second

Jim Woessner placed second in the javelin and discus, Tom Baumgarten second in the two mile run, and Harold Shudlick second in the 220-yard dash.

Placing third for the Knights were Jon Thiemann in the mile run, Lowell Syverson in the high jump and Jerry Zehr in the 220-yard low hurdles.

Knights are at Dubuque today in a triangular against Loras and Platteville State.

Becker's Blunders

Triple Jump Is Our Event

By MIKE BECKER

After last week's horrible column I will try to do justice to the many discriminating readers of the Trumpet, along with those whose prides were hurt by last week's column. My subject will be one that is very dear to my heart--the triple jump. I feel that we should add the triple jump to our conference meet and to all of our dual meets. I feel this way especially because of the fine triple jumpers we have in the persons of Jerry Zehr and Lowell Syverson.

Becker

If one could only realize all the tremendous possibilities which might be realized through the triple jump. We would finally be able to start training our athletes for the Olympics in this specialty, we could get a longer broad jump pit, attendance would increase by two or three (relatives and girls friends of the triple jumpers), etc.

There is no limit to the possibilities open. Certainly the meet might take five minutes longer to run, but so what if one or two extra guys have to help with the running of this event. Even if we have to take another car to the away meets for triple jumpers and their relatives, it would still be worth it.

Wartburg might become a world track power in the triple jump. Triple jumpers from Russia, Germany, the Union of South Africa and Southern Iowa would all be sent from those desolated places to the mecca of triple jumping--Wartburg College, Waverly, Iowa. Here they would be looked up to as a new breed. They could work out by leaping the mighty Cedar River at flood time, or running the rolling hills and sand dunes of the golf course or even running the many flights of stairs in the Knights' new science hall.

The hurlers redeemed themselves with a fine performance against the University of Dubuque. We threw our best at them and several hurlers came through with flying colors, especially some that hadn't had much of a chance before.

Lynn Butterbrodt came through with a fine three-inning performance, giving up one run and striking out several of the opposition. John Hearn looked equally well, showing the Dubuquesters the Racine hummer. Nails Walters came through with another fine curve ball performance. Today is another day of testing as the Knights travel out of their own lion's den into the opposition's.

Fortress Editor Ends Year

By KATIE MAAHS

"Hopefully the second week in May." That's the date Editor Marvin Ackerman, junior, expects the 1965 Fortress to appear.

One major change in this year's Fortress, said Ackerman, is a rearrangement of sections.

"Instead of putting the administration in the first section, campus life has been put in its place, following a modern trend. Purpose is to make the first part more interesting and inviting," he explained.

Black Is Main Color

"Black is my favorite color, so everything is black -- the end sheets are black, the division sheets are black. The cover is a metallic gold, though." Ackerman explained that the book would have eight more pages this year.

In the beginning of the year the Fortress editor had a problem because he could find no photographer. Another setback was an extremely small staff when work really began on the annual.

"My biggest shock of the year came when I returned from a field trip last fall and found some new furniture in the office and everything completely cleaned. I couldn't find anything for two weeks!" he laughed.

Convention Is High Light

Marv's most memorable experience was his trip to Chicago for the three-day convention of the Associated Collegiate Press, held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in October.

Usually something humorous happens to a Fortress editor at some time during the year, but according to Ackerman, "Nothing funny happened all year, but there certainly was enough to cry about!"

From the first of January to the end of March, Ackerman worked almost seven days a week on the annual.

Fortress Editor Marvin Ackerman checks some last minute details on the yearbook, which is expected to appear on campus around the middle of May.

"I can honestly say that to be a full-time student and an editor is an impossible job. Since the book is done, I have had a chance to go to the library on Saturdays, which I couldn't do while I was working on the Fortress," said Ackerman.

After graduation the yearbook editor plans to teach French and journalism. Next year he will be co-editor of the yearbook with sophomore Jean Biere.

Ackerman also worked on the Trumpet his freshman and sophomore years and was feature editor during part of his sophomore year.

Morse Is Associate Editor

Associate editor this year is sophomore Linda Morse.

Ackerman's final comment was "I said I'd never take this job again, but I'm going to anyway. I guess it's characteristic of all editors to say this."

The yearbook will be presented to the dedicatee by Ackerman at the Honors Convocation program on May 13.

Students Approve Chancel Proposal

Three additions to the chancel setting, proposed by the Student Congregation Council, have been approved by congregation members.

Additions will include Communion kneelers, a Communion altar cloth and liturgical hangings in various colors to correspond with the seasons of the church year.

Communion kneelers and altar cloth will be ready for use by the beginning of next semester, and possibly before school is out, according to council member Dave Steege.

A Memorial Fund will be established by the Student Congregation to purchase the liturgical hangings, and they will be added when there is sufficient money in the fund to cover the cost. Each of the items is being designed by Sacred Design Associates, of Mineapolis.

New congregation officers have also been named. Junior Walt Buenning will head next year's council. Sophomore Dave Steege will serve as vice president, with junior Ann Wesender as secretary.

Sophomore Jim Lubben will be treasurer of the council next year.

Juniors To Give Recitals May 6

Soprano Karen Goodno and pianist Diane Voelker will present their junior recitals in the Fine Arts Center on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Miss Goodno is a student of C. R. Larson, while Miss Voelker studies under Arthur Madsen.
